

Northrop Grumman to Host Global Land Forces Modernization Media Briefing

October 1, 2014

In advance of AUSA National next week and the Logistics Officers Association National Symposium Oct. 19-22, Northrop Grumman (NYSE: NOC) executives will discuss several key global logistics efforts in support of our U.S. and allied customers. The event focuses on land forces support including the modernization of aging systems, platforms and components, as well as training solutions to improve 24/7 mission readiness.

A blue swoosh graphic that starts under the 'N' and curves upwards and to the right, ending under the 'M'.

Today, 70 percent of the cost of a military system is in sustaining and modernizing that product over its entire life cycle while 30 percent is in its research, development and production. The robust global logistics marketplace provides tremendous opportunities for companies to deliver differentiated value, to innovate for affordable solutions and to provide top performance to their customers.
