Northrop Grumman's board now totals 12 members, 11 of whom are non- employee directors.

"Don Felsing is an accomplished business leader who brings proven operating expertise and a track record of creating shareholder value in a global enterprise," said Ronald D. Sugar, Northrop Grumman chairman and chief executive officer. "He is an outstanding addition to the board and we look forward to his contributions to our company's future success."

As chairman and CEO, Felsing directs the strategic operations of all the Sempra Energy companies, which provide electricity, natural gas, and products and services. With 14,000 employees, the companies serve 29 million consumers in the United States, Europe, Canada, Mexico, South America and Asia. Previously, as president and chief operating officer of Sempra Energy, he was responsible for implementing its growth strategy and for overall management of the Sempra Energy companies. He has been a member of the Sempra Energy board of directors since 2005.

Felsing has also served as group president of Sempra Global. In that job, he led Sempra Energy's expansion into competitive energy markets, helping to build successful businesses in power generation, energy-infrastructure development, energy trading and marketing, and liquefied natural gas development. Prior to the merger that formed Sempra Energy, Felsing held positions of president and chief operating officer of Enova Corporation and president and chief executive officer of San Diego Gas & Electric (SDG&E); He joined SDG&E in 1972.

Felsing earned a bachelor's degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Arizona and is a graduate of the Stanford University executive program. He is serving or has served on the boards of the U.S.-Mexico Chamber of Commerce, Institute of the Americas, the Green Foundation and as co- chairperson of the Forum Fronterizo Council of the San Diego Dialogue. He is a member of The Conference Board and the California Business Roundtable.

He will serve on Northrop Grumman's Audit Committee and Compensation & Management Development Committee.
